QCR is a refereed academic journal that publishes articles of interest to scholars in communication studies and allied fields whose work is primarily qualitative in orientation. Mixed-method studies are welcome unless they are primarily quantitative, as are experimental forms of presentation. Excluded are cultural theoretical essays without an empirical grounding, calls for research, and textual criticism. In addition, QCR publishes "Issues in Qualitative Communication Research," a forum where issues or controversies in the field can be addressed in shorter point-of-view essays.
